The IAF expedition has reached Iqaluit in Canada.

NEW DELHI: The IAF expedition reached Iqaluit on Saturday (2020Hrs IST) their last stop in North America.

They took off from Inukjuak earlier. If the weather was fine, they would have reached Iqaluit on Friday itself, but extremely low cloud cover forced them to cancel that attempt.

Even now, the conditions are overcast, but the duo of Wing Cdrs Rahul Monga and Anil Kumar are flying low to overcome the problem.

The duo plans to cross the Baffin Sea into Greenland on Sunday.

However, according to latest reports, if the weather permits, they might attempt it on Saturday itself. The flight across the Baffin Sea would take around 5 hours.

Keep checking this space to know the latest about the expedition.
